Maria

Maria became a young mother to nine children only to fall into the cycle of domestic violence she grew up in. But when the abuse overflowed to her children, Maria knew something had to change.

Maria and her children left home with nothing — no home, no money, no vehicle, and no support.

She turned to Goodwill San Antonio, who provided an immediate opportunity for employment and child care assistance while she and her family moved into a transitional living program. Now working full-time and receiving case management support to learn how to trust, Maria is becoming financially independent and providing stability for her children — something none of them have ever known.

With help from Goodwill, Maria found more than a job, she found the confidence and the means to stand on her own.
